LINES TO A BEAUTIFUL SPRING IN A VILLAGE.

[From POEMS by S. T. COLERIDGE.]

ONCE more, sweet stream! with slow foot wand'ring near,
I bless thy milky waters cold and clear.
Escap'd the flashing of the noontide hours
With one fresh garland of Pierian flowers,
(Ere from thy zephyr-haunted brink I turn)
My languid hand shall wreath thy mossy urn.
For not thro' pathless grove with murmur rude
Thou soothest the sad wood-nymph, SOLITUDE:
Nor thine unseen in cavern depths to well.
The HERMIT-FOUNTAIN of some dripping cell!
Pride of the Vale! thy useful streams supply
The scatter'd cots and peaceful hamlet nigh.
The elfin tribe around thy friendly banks
With infant uproar and soul-soothing pranks,
Releas'd from school, their little hearts at rest,
Launch paper navies on thy waveless breast.

The rustic here at eve with pensive look
Whistling lorn ditties leans upon his crook,
Or starting pauses with hope-mingled dread,
To list the much-lov'd maid's accustom'd tread,
She, vainly mindful of her dame's command,
Loiters, the long-fill'd pitcher in her hand.
Unboastful stream! Thy fount with pebbled falls
The faded form of past delight recalls,
What time the morning sun of Hope arose,
And all was joy; save when another's woes,
A transient gloom upon my soul impress,
Like passing clouds impictured on thy breast.
Life's current then ran sparkling to the noon
Or silv'ry stole beneath the pensive Moon.
Ah! now it works rude-brakes and thorns among,
Or o'er the rough rock bursts and foams along!

From the AURORA.

To the Electors of the City of Philadelphia.

Fellow-citizens,

WHEN we consider the high interest that we all took in the important question lately decided in our national Legislature, there seems no doubt that, in the ensuing election, your attention will be attracted in a considerable degree towards the different candidates for that station, and to the forming of our choice.

This consequence, which is natural, is also very desirable; because the more ardently we enter upon the subject, the more likely are we to choose with propriety, as the interest we take in the subject will sharpen our discernment in investigating the characters that we propose to represent us. There is, however, reason to apprehend that this zeal (which when moderate is beneficial) will be rendered injurious by excess, and instead of promoting industrious researches, will serve only to bias the public judgment. I would therefore caution you, my fellow-citizens, to free yourselves from all party prejudices, and to avoid those men who come in a pressing manner to solicit your suffrages, because it is probable that their activity in the matter proceeds from the same influence. Let your votes originate with yourselves, and let them be the result of your own cool reflection. Examine with candour into the abilities and integrity of a candidate, and decide for him on whose side you find the balance of these requisite qualities, without deigning to listen to the intrigues of corruption, or the solicitations of ignorance.

For my part, I confess, I cannot help suspecting those who evince such anxiety to direct the judgments of their neighbours, of less worthy views than those of zeal for the public good; that acting themselves from interested motives, they endeavor to ingratiate themselves still more with their favorite, by converting others to his interest.

Let us, however, for the sake of charity, suppose that they act from principle. Is it not the height of arrogance for them to endeavour to bias the minds of other men, and substitute their own opinions for ours? What is it but to say that we are destitute of penetration to see the interest of our country, and that they wish to supply our deficiency by their own instruction?

It is not intended here to recommend any particular man to the notice of the public. I should consider such a recommendation as impertinent, because we all know the candidates, and know their characters. All I would wish is, that the decision of every individual, to whatever side it inclines, may be free, and not dependant on the will of others.

ROMULUS.

RICHMOND, September 24.

To the Freeholders of the Counties of Glocester, Mathews, King and Queen, Essex, King William, and Middlesex.

GENTLEMEN,

The time* approaches when you must depute an Elector to chuse a President and Vice-President of the United States. I offer myself to you for that honour. My principles of politics have been in favour of the wise plan of neutrality, adopted, and pursued by our government. I am therefore attached to those men in high official situations, who have kept our country, during a most trying and perilous crisis, in a state of peace; thereby advancing its prosperity to the highest pitch, of which it is at present susceptible; who have made the constitution the rule of their actions, and have invigorated it with such respectability, as to acquire to it the confidence of the European world. Among the worthies who have given to our government such an exaltation of character in the eye of nations, must be reckoned foremost in the list, "the President of the United States."—He would most assuredly have my support were I to have an opportunity of exercising an elective voice, unless he were to notify his intention of retiring from the government. In that event, it would be my part, most diligently, to search out for his successor, a character the most resembling his in political principles, in sound judgment, in unexampled prudence, and in unshaken firmness.

Not altogether ignorant of the public opinions and sentiments on public affairs, of most men of such consideration in the states as would aspire to the Presidential chair; I persuade myself, gentlemen, were you on this occasion to give me your confidence as an Elector, I would not err in my choice, nor give my voice for a man who would incur your reprobation, as holding principles incompatible with the interests of the United States.

With every consideration of esteem and respect,
I remain, gentlemen,
Your fellow-citizen, and
Most obedient humble servant,
RALPH WORMELEY.

Rosegill, September 6, 1796.

* First Monday in November.

ELIZABETH-TOWN, Sept. 28.

It is with a mixture of pleasure and regret, that we present to our readers the PRESIDENT's ADDRESS, contained in this day's paper:—of pleasure, because we esteem it an invaluable legacy to the People of these States;—of regret (a selfish one we confess) because it announces his departure from the political helm.

If superstition hallows every relic of a pretended saint;—if sensibility so richly prizes every memorial of a beloved friend;—how highly should the citizens of America venerate this testimonial of affection from the BRIGHTEST MIRROR OF DEITY that ever existed, even though it were possessed of no intrinsic merit!——But the heart, warm and enthusiastic, often fondly invents a microscope to view the loveliness of a favored object; and, deceived by partiality, is enraptured by things that are frivolous, perhaps despicable. It is not so in the present case; for the understanding is convinced equally with the heart, and the glad tribune of applause is cheerfully proffered by them both.

This address resembles the fond advice of a dying parent to his beloved children:—Like that, it breathes the warmth of affection, and an anxious solicitude for their future welfare:—Like that, let it never be effaced from our remembrance, let it deeply impress our minds, and be worn in the centre of our hearts.

And when its illustrious author shall retire to partake of the enjoyments of private life—long, long may he live, enjoying all that happiness which he deserves! May he cheerfully pass through the evening of his days, blessed by the God whom he worships, esteemed by the people whom he has rendered happy, loved by the wife whom he cherishes, at peace with himself, and neither fearing nor wishing for death: whilst his philanthropic atchievements throng around him, like ministrant-cherubs, singing their requiems to his declining years!

——May he live
Longer than I have time to tell his years!
Ever belov'd and loving may his life be!
And when old time shall lead him to his end,
Goodness and he fill up one monument!

PHILADELPHIA,

FRIDAY EVENING, SEPTEMBER 30, 1796.

Died, in this city, on Saturday the 17th instant, after a short illness, Mr. RICHARD COCHRAN, Merchant. He was a young gentleman, deservedly respected by a numerous, and respectable acquaintance. And the next day his remains were interred in the Presbyterian burial ground, in Lower Merion township, Montgomery county, attended by a vast concourse of respectable citizens, of different denominations.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman, dated City of Washington, 26th Sept. 1796, to a person in this City.

"At this moment the alarm of fire is cried. A tremenduous fire has broke out in George-town, and has consumed ten houses, all of them frame. Messrs. George and Adam King are the principal sufferers; Mr. J. Forrest has lost two or three houses; Doctor Magruder has suffered by the removal of his drugs, &c. His house was torn down with two others, which was the means of the fire being stopt, with the help of the engine. The fire broke out in one of Mr. Kings houses, but cannot find out the particulars; it is said to be the neglect of a servant of Mr. King, who was ordered on Saturday, to have his masters horse ready by day light, for Mr. King to go to Baltimore, and left the candle in the stable—this is one of the reports, there are others, but it is hard to tell which is true.—Five of the houses were occupied as dry and wet good stores; all the goods have been saved. No lives lost, nor any person hurt."

Extract from a FRENCH PAPER.

France possesses at this moment only three colonies in the West-Indies. CAYENNE, which was never reckoned as any thing in the commercial scale. GUADALOUPE, which hardly supports itself—the produce of which does not amount to one quarter part of what it did before the war, since France gets nothing, and the United States very little.

ST. DOMINGO is divided between the French and the English. The latter possess that part formerly called Grande Anse, comprehending Irois, Abricots, Cape Dame Marie, Jeremie and Cayemites. They have also Port au-Prince, la Croix de Bouquets, le Mirebalais, l'Archahaye, St. Marc, and the Mole; that is, in all ten parishes. There remains then to the French forty seven or forty eight. In this number are the parishes of the north part of the island, which, before the revolution, were the richest and most opulent of the colony.

The quarters which are in the hands of the English, produce four times as much as those which pertain to the French.—[The paper then proceeds to assign the reasons for this difference—The principal one is, that in the places possessed by the English, or those under their command, the negroes work. In those possessed by the French, the mulattoes have the ascendancy, and there the negroes will not work, but pillage, burn and destroy.]

NOTES LOST.

WHEREAS two notes drawn by Benjamin Haskell and George W. Kirkland, dated Boston, the 24th February, 1796, payable to Joseph May, or order, in 18 months after date, one for One Thousand Dollars, the other Fifteen Dollars, were stolen with some other papers out of a trunk on the Lancaster road. It is requested that any person to whom they may be offered for negociation, will give notice thereof to the subscriber.

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

PARIS, July 27.

The desertion of the regiment of Benger is officially announced—this regiment is almost annihilated.

We are assured that the French is in Manheim, and that a commissioner is arrived at Basle from the Emperor, to make overtures of peace to our ambassador.

There is a report that Richery has engaged the English fleet off Cadiz.

Deputies are arrived at Genoa from Sardinia, to solicit the assistance of the French in establishing that island as a republic.

Letters from Wesel positively announce, that the King of Prussia has offered his mediation to the Directory, to bring about a general pacification.

LONDON, August 2.

The officers and crews of the Resistance, of 44 guns, capt. E. Packenham; and Orpheus, of 30 guns, capt. Newcombe, now in the East-Indies, will share more prize money on their arrival in England, than ever fell to the lot of any others before them.

From the London Gazette—July 30.

Downing Street, July 30.

The letter, of which the following is an extract, was received from Col. Graham, by the Right hon. Lord Grenville, his Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for Foreign affairs, dated Roveredo, July 4, 1796.

"On the 30th ult. I had the honour of informing your Lordship, that the enemy made an unsuccessful attack on Monte Baldo on the 28th, since that all has remained quiet. Marshal Wurmser arrived here this morning.

Downing Street July 30.

The letter of which the following is an extract, received from Lieutenant Col. Craufurd, by the Right hon. Lord Grenville, his Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, dated Head-Quarters of his Royal Highness the Arch-Duke Charles of Austria, Elsingen, near Piortzheim, July 11, 1796.

"I have the honor to inform your Lordship, that on the 7th and 8th instant, the arch-duke remained in possession of Etthingen, in order to give time for the arrival at Pfortzheim of the Saxons, who were advancing from Graben, to re-inforce his Royal Highness's army—& the corps that had been detached into the Mountains, under the command of Gen. Keim, to cover the left, was ordered to take its principal position at Frewen Alb.

The Saxons reached Pfortzheim in the night of the Seventh.——On the eighth, the dispositions was made to attack Gen. Moreau on the 10th in the position of the Murg, at Rastadt, Kupenheim and Gertzbach, and, on the 9th, while the preparatory movements were executing, in order to bring the troops forward to the different points from whence they were to advance the next morning, the enemy forced back the Archdukes advanced posts with a part of their army, while their principal force attacked Gen. Keim. His Royal Highness immediately supported his advanced posts, and was victorious on his right, and along his whole front; but gen. Keim, after having made a most obstinate resistance, was obliged to yield to the superiority of numbers, and he retired to Pfortzheim. The Saxons who were in march, to cover that general's left flank, did the same; and, as this unfortunate circumstance gave the enemy possession of all the passes in the Mountains, on the arch-duke's left, his Royal Highness found himself under the necessity of marching with his main army to Pfortzheim on the 10th, where he is now encamped.

The Austrians lost on this occasion, about 1600 men and four pieces of cannon. The loss of the French cannot be exactly ascertained—but it must have been very considerable.

The Prince of Conde's corps, which has behaved with great bravery, was at Villingen on the 8th, the date of the last accounts that were received from it. The Austrian general Frolich still remained in the Brisgaw.

The enemy has passed the Lahn, and the army which was left for the defence of that part of the country, has retired to the position of Bergen, having thrown proper garrisons into Mayence and Ehrenbreitstein.

At the Court of the Queen's House, the 29th of July, 1796; present, the King's most excellent Majesty in Council—

HIS Majesty in Council was this day pleased to order, that the Parliament, which stands prorogued to Tuesday, the 16th day of August next, should be farther prorogued to Thursday, the 15th day of September following—And the Convocations of Canterbury and York, which stand prorogued to Wednesday the 17th of August next, should be farther prorogued to Friday, the 16th of September following.

By the KING—A PROCLAMATION.

GEORGE R.

Whereas our Parliament stands prorogued to Thursday the 15th day of September next, we, with the advice of our Privy Council, do hereby publish and declare our royal will and pleasure, that the said Parliament shall, on the said 15th day of September next, be held and sit for the dispatch of divers weighty and important affairs. And the lords spiritual and temporal, and the knights, citizens and burgesses, and the commissioners for shires and burghs of the House of Commons, are hereby required to give their attendance accordingly at Westminster on the said 15th day of September next.

Given at our court at the queen's house, the 29th day of July, 1796, in the 36th year of our reign.

August 3.

We have for some time past asserted, that a misunderstanding existed between this country and Spain, and that the Executive Directory were exerting all their influence upon the Spanish government, for the purpose of inducing it to declare war against this country. The following was published this morning as a

MANIFESTO FROM THE COURT OF SPAIN,

Which the Marquis de las Casas, Ambassador of his Catholic Majesty at our Court, has, it is said, by the direction of his court, presented to Lord Grenville. Whether the manifesto is or is not authentic, we have not yet been able to ascertain. It is in substance as follows—

"The Spanish cabinet retraces the origin of the coalition, and mentions the principal circumstances, as well as the different events, in which both nations took an active part, during their alliance, against the French Republic. This statement is followed by an account of several transactions which have taken place before and since the secession of Spain from the coalition, and the treaty of peace concluded with France, as,

First. The St. Jago prize ship, which the note contends to have been condemned in open contempt of subsisting treaties and legal forms.

Secondly. Divers circumstances which attended the capture and evacuation of Toulon, on which occasion the Spanish cabinet asserts, that the British commanders fulfilled none of the terms granted to the inhabitants under the guarantee of the Spanish commanders; and that they carried off several French ships, without allowing the Spaniards any part of the prizes.

Thirdly. The embargo laid in our ports on wood for ship-building, bought up in the north of Europe on account of the Spanish government, which was left rotting either on board the ships, or in ware-houses, where it could not be taken care of.

Fourthly. The embargo laid on the fire-arms purchased in England on Spanish account, and with the consent of our government, after the French had got possession of the Spanish founderies, which fire arms were obliged to be re-sold by the Spanish agents at a considerable loss.

Fifthly. The insult offered to his Catholic Majesty, in the person of the Marquis de las Casas, his Ambassador, when he had his first audience with Lord Grenville.

Sixthly. The seizure of the silks sent to this country by Spanish merchants, which they had bought up at their own account at the sale of the prizes made by admiral Richery, and which they had sent to England conformable to the laws of Great-Britain.

Seventhly. That the stoppage of several Spanish vessels, the vexatious proceedings daily exercised against them by the commanders of the squadrons of his Britannic Majesty, as well in the Mediterrean as in the other seas."

A war with Spain will, we should suppose, be considered as a most calamitous event to this country, by every person in it. The time was, when the idea of a Spanish war diffused almost general satisfaction; but the sentiments of the nation are now, we believe, changed; and the people begin to be convinced, that galleons and register ships, however rich their cargoes may be, afford but a poor compensation to the country for the additional taxes and burthens, which are the sure and permanent effects of every war.

August 4.

[☞ The above contradicted.]

The manifesto, which was published in a ministerial paper yesterday morning, we gave without any comment on its authenticity. We have since learnt that no such manifesto has been presented to the king's ministers, & this the ministerial paper itself confesses; though the same paper also states that "they are persuaded, after the most minute enquiry, that such complaints as they have alleged, have been forwarded by the court of Madrid to its ambassador in London." Now it certainly will be with every one a natural subject of enquiry, why the court of Madrid or its ambassador, thought proper to communicate a document of such importance to the Editor of a newspaper, before they made it known to his majesty's ministers?—Such a mode of conduct would in the Spanish ambassador be a flagrant violation of duty. Besides the document itself is clumsily drawn up. The subjects of complaints are weakly handled, and the whole appears to us to be a forgery, which cannot lay claim even to the merit of ingenuity.

Not that we mean to give it as our opinion that there exists no difference between this country and Spain. On the contrary we have reason to believe that the Spanish government has transmitted serious complaints to our cabinet; that the Executive Directory possess great influence over the Spanish councils, and that they are endeavouring to convert Spain from a doubtful friend into a decided foe of this country.

The master of a neutral vessel, arrived at Leith, mentions, that two of the vessels which were engaged with the Glatton, are arrived at Flushing; one of them had one half of her crew killed, and her gun deck entirely torn up; the other was very much shattered.

A lugger, which arrived at Plymouth the day before yesterday, brings advice of a convoy having sailed from Brest for Bourdeaux, consisting of two frigates, two corvettes, and twenty-six sail of merchantmen. It was rumored at Plymouth, the day before yesterday, that a French fleet was at sea.

Letters from Bonn state, that the siege of Ehrenbreithein will speedily begin in form.

The old Almanack has been forbidden under a heavy fine and imprisonment at Brussels.

Yesterday the convention received the intelligence that the French had entered Frankfort. On a [illegible] the measures were also pointed out which the French had [illegible] to induce the Austrians over the Rhein from [illegible], and over the Necker from the other, in order to cut them off, by the armies of Jourdan [illegible], or force them to make their retreat.

July 23.

[illegible] the French minister at our Republic, [illegible] Convention of the Cape of Good [illegible] being [illegible] re-captured by the French; but the truth of this welcome piece of information is much doubted by those who do not know of any French squadron having sailed for that important colony, and therefore are apt to imagine, that by the channels through which this intelligence comes to us, Cape Francois, where two French squadrons have lately arrived from Europe, has been metamorphosed into the Cape of Good-Hope.

A similar mistake at least took place with respect to the division which sailed last Saturday from Flushing, to join the fleet in the Texel. This fleet had an engagement with a large English man-of-war, and was even by the Convention announced to consist of Dutch ships, whilst in fact it was entirely composed of French vessels, lately arrived at Flushing, from Dunkirk. The Incorruptible, a frigate mounting 36 guns, received such considerable damage in this engagement, as to be obliged to put into Helvoetsluys, to refit. The other seven ships, of different force, returned to Flushing.

SUABIA, July 17.

The Austrian armies, in the countries of Baden, and Wurtemberg, have since the 10th been again compelled to retreat, as they suffered a considerable loss on the 9th. On the 10th they left Carlsruhe which the French entered on the evening of the next day. In the action near Wilbad, on the 9th, (according to official accounts from Stutgard) the Austrians lost about 1500 men in killed, wounded and prisoners.—Several squadrons of the Saxon hussars, and the Chasseurs of Weymar likewise suffered very much. The Austrian army is retiring through the Duchy of Wurtemberg towards the Danube, and were encamped on the 14th inst. between Kanstadt, Ludwigsburgh and Waiblingen; whence their army retreated in two columns thro' the Vilsthal and Remsthal. The city of Stutgard on the 15th and 16th was obliged to deliver 60,000 pounds of bread to the Austrian camp.

The French have taken possession of Obernagold and Oberenzthal. The head-quarters of the archduke Charles, which were on the 14th at Vaihingen, have been removed to Heilbron.

VERONA, June 27.

This morning a detachment of 1000 French entered Legnage, a Venetian fort. The republicans now occupy the right bank of the Adige, and the Austrians the left. From the movements of the Austrians, it should seem, that they intended again to act offensively.

MILAN, July 6.

There have been at Pavia and Lodi, several religious and civic festivals, in which the tree of liberty has been planted.

Great rejoicings have been made here on account of the reduction of the citadel.

Every thing announces that the Milanese will be speedily erected into a Republic. It is the interest of the French to come soon to a resolution on this point, for the purpose of organizing a national force, and making it serve for the defence of the country. It appears that the Austrians are assembling forces to endeavor to penetrate into Lombardy. The French, who are obliged to occupy a great extent of country, have also much want of reinforcements. It appears, that their plan is to unite their other conquests to the Lombardian Republic. Deputies from Modena and Romagna are just arrived here, demanding this union.

GENOA, July 11.

In consequence of the complaints made by M. Faypoul, in his note to our government, several priests have been brought before the Police, and interrogated respecting the offensive processions. The priests replied, that they were not made under their direction, and that at all times the good Catholics have had the liberty of going to visit the sanctuaries. It is certain, however, that the priests are the instigators of these processions, which are composed of the lowest class of the people. The minister of the French Republic should have stated more plainly in this memorial that several members of the government promote these alarms, and that on them alone should fall the responsibility, if any disagreeable event took place. In vain will they say, to excuse themselves, that they were not able to restrain the people.

They will be replied to—"It was you who instigated the people: they were but your instrument, and it is on you that all our vengeance shall fall."

FRANCE.

ARMY OF THE RHINE AND MOSELLE.

The general in chief of the army of the Rhine and Moselle, to the Executive Directory.

"Head Quarters at Baden,
"28 Messidor, July 16.

"Citizens Directors,

"I this day arrived from Pfortzheim to regulate with the deputies of the duke of Wirtemberg, a suspension of arms, for which he has solicited me. I send to you a copy of the treaty which I am about to conclude with them. Two plenipotentiaries have set out for Paris to negociate with you his particular peace.

"It now remains with us to mention to you the operations of the army.

"In my letter of the 23d Messidor, July 11, I gave you an account of the retreat of the enemy towards Pfortzheim, We pursued them closely by the same marches.

"On the 26th Messidor, July 14, being in a position to attack them—the divisions under the orders of general St, Cyr, being encamped along the Lentz and the Nagold, and those commanded by general Desaix placed in the front of Ladgen Steinbach—I gave orders to commence the assault the following day upon Pfortzheim; but the Austrians evacuated that position the same night, the 26th.

"Yesterday and to day the army proceeded towards the Virm. It appears that the enemy has retired behind the Necker. If they attempt to maintain their ground, I shall make the attack as soon as possible; but I ought not to conceal from you, that the marches are exceeding difficult in the mountains. I have been obliged to leave some troops at Bruchshall, to observe the garrisons which the enemy marched to Philipsburg and Manheim.

"I have ordered general Ferino to chase the enemy entirely from the valley of Kinche. General St. Cyr had commissioned general Duhem to second this attack from his camp of Frewdenstadt. This was done on the 26th Messidor, July 14, and was crowned with the most complete success.

"General Jordy attacked the posts of Haplach and Hausen; and after a spirited resistance, they were carried by the bayonet. He surrounded the enemy, took 200 prisoners and two pieces of cannon.

"This movement was seconded by the other divisions under the command of general Ferino, who advanced to Munichveiller, Schvaighausen, and Berbelsheim. Every where the enemy was repulsed, and obliged to repass the Bitche.

"General Laborde accomplished, at the very same time, a passage at Huningue, Kempte, and Old Brisach. All these plans succeeded. I cannot yet furnish you with the details, but shall as soon as the materials are collected.

"The attack of general Duhem at the sources of the Kinche, were equally successful.

"The column on the right, commanded by adjutant general Gudin, attacked Wolsach. In his pursuit of the enemy, he made 20 prisoners, and took a magazine full of ammunition.

"That of the centre, under the command of general Vandamme, attacked the post of Alpersburg, which he carried with much gallantry. Nearly the whole of the enemy was either killed or taken.—There were 200 prisoners, among whom were two officers.

"The right division, conducted by Laval, chief of the brigade, attacked all the posts of the enemy between the Necker and the Kinche. They were all carried. We pursued them even to Sehrambert. Their loss was considerable. Laval took six covered waggons, 40 horses, and 300 prisoners, among whom were six officers, and 30 subalterns.

"General Ferino bestows much praise on general Jordy, Vigne, chief of the brigade, and Poitevin, chief of the battalion of the engineer corps.

"General Duhem is unbounded in his encomiums on generals Vandamme, Gudin, adjutant-general Laval, chief of the battalion.

"The troops which made the attacks conducted themselves with great courage. They were the 56th, 17th and 103th demi-brigades, the 20th regiment of chasseurs, and a detachment from the 3d regiment of hussars, commanded by citizen Donadieu, severely wounded at Husselach.

"I hope soon to announce to you that the enemy has been entirely expelled from the Brisgau and the banks of the Necker.

"I have just now received a letter from general Jourdan, which apprises me of his entrance into Frankfort.

"The general in chief.
"Signed, MOREAU."

Letter from MOREAU, general in chief, to the Executive Directory.

"Head-Quarters at Baden,
"29 Messidor, July 17.

"Citizens Directors,

"I have received your two letters of the 25th Messidor, July 13. My reports on the operations of the army ought to convince you that I have not lost sight of your plan. This day's report apprises you of the result of a movement which you commanded on the Upper Rhine. It has been somewhat slow. This is owing to the re union of the forces which I had ordered on this party, who had almost all been obliged to go down the Rhine to the Kehl, and afterwards to return, the floods rendering all navigation impossible.

"I have received the letters which you have written to several officers of the army, communicating to them your approbation of their conduct.

"I cannot too often repeat, that the affair of Ettingen is one of the most glorious of the war.—The gallantry and admirable disposition of general St. Cyr, contributed greatly to the success.

"Health and respect,
"MOREAU."

ARMY OF ITALY.

Extract of a letter from general Buonaparte, commander in chief of the army of Italy, to the Executive Directory.

"Head Quarters at Milan,
"26 Messidor, July 14.

"A monk arrived from Trente, brings information from Romania, that the Austrians had passed Adige, raised the blockade of Mantua, and were advancing by forced marches into Romania. Seditious writings and fanatic preachers every where excite insurrection. They organised in a few days what they called l'Armee Catholique et Papal.—They established their head-quarters at Lugo, a large town of legation at Ferrara, though situated in Romania.

"General Augereau gave orders to Pourailliers, chief of the brigade, to attempt the reduction of Lugo. This officer, at the head of a battalion, arrived before this town, where the tocsin sounded several hours. They found there some thousands of peasants.

"An officer of grenadiers advanced to parley with them. They made signs to him to come forward, and the next moment he was assailed by a volley of musket shot. These wretches, as cowardly as treacherous, fled. Some hundreds were left dead on the spot.

"Since this event, which happened on the 18th Messidor (July 6) order has been restored, and all is now perfectly tranquil.

(Signed) "BUONAPARTE."

PARIS, July 27.

Mandats, which have fallen within these few days to 3 livres 10 sous, yesterday rose to 5 livres 12 sous.

The official news of the capture of Rheinfelden, the first forest town belonging to the Emperor, has this moment been received. Our troops have also taken possession of Seckingen, which has surrendered by capitulation to the troops that crossed the Rhine at Heningen. This city has delivered up two field pieces which the Austrians were obliged to abandon. These guns have been brought to Rheinfelden, where they were found by General Laborde This official letter announces that our troops occupy at this moment a fine country, in which there is a rich and abundant harvest: it adds that this country will be inexhaustible in resources if well managed. The inhabitants are delighted in seeing that our troops entered as friends, neighbours and brethren. They will pay the contributions with pleasure, and will supply requisitions of wheat, hay, oats, &c.

The desertion of the regiment of Bender is also officially announced—this regiment is almost annihilated.

On the 30th Messidor, July 18, the light cavalry being on a reconnoitering party, fell in with the enemy's hussars a league above Lauffenbourg: some pistol shots were exchanged. Besides the upper Margraviate of Baden, our troops occupy the forest towns of Rheinfelden and Seckingen, and during the day, Lauffenbourg, and the whole of the Frieckthal.

We are assured that the French are in Manheim, and that a commissioner has arrived at Basle from the Emperor, to make overtures of peace to our Ambassador.

The two armies of Moreau and Jourdan have established a communication with each other.

The Duke of Wirtemberg, by the articles of the suspension of hostilities is obliged to pay to France four millions—to furnish 4000 horses, some thousand oxen, and ammunition. He has withdrawn his troops from the Austrian army.

BATAVIAN REPUBLIC.

HAGUE, July 9.

It is well known to have been resolved, that our Grand Fleet should not have sailed from the Texel, till the Division from Helvoetsluys and Flushing should have joined it. The latter therefore, consisting of a frigate of 44 guns, and four other smaller ships of war, sailed on the 14th inst. from the Scheldt. On the 16th, this division fell in with a large English man of war, which immediately gave chase. The 4 smaller armed vessels immediately sailed back to the Scheldt. The frigate was obliged to sustain a warm action, but she fortunately got from her superior enemy, and reached the harbour of Helvoetsluys, though very much damaged.—General Bournonville has now forbidden the guard of Burghers of Utrecht all military service, and went afterwards to the heath of Gorsel, between Deventer and Zutphen, where his head-quarters now are. General Daendels who has been recalled with his corps from Cleves, has his head quarters at Nimeguen.

And approved notes, securing payment in either money or prizes, in ten days after drawing, will be received for any number not less than 30 tickets.

This Lottery will afford an elegant specimen of the private buildings to be erected in the City of Washington—Two beautiful designs are already selected for the entire fronts on two of the public squares; from these drawings it is proposed to erect two centre and four corner buildings, as soon as possible after this lottery is sold, and to convey them, when complete, to the fortunate adventurers, in the manner described in the scheme for the Hotel Lottery. A nett deduction of five per cent. will be made to defray the necessary expenses of printing, &c. and the surplus will be made a part of the fund intended for the National University, to be erected within the city of Washington.

The Drawing will commence as soon as the tickets are sold off.—The money prizes will be payable in thirty days after it is finished; and any prizes for which fortunate numbers are not produced within twelve months after the drawing is closed, are to be considered as given towards the fund for the University; it being determined to settle the whole business in a year from the ending of the drawing, and to take up the bonds given as security.

The real securities given for the payment of the Prizes, are held by the President and two Directors of the Bank of Columbia, and are valued at more than half the amount of the lottery.

The twenty four gentlemen who by appointment of the late Commissioners assisted in the management of the Hotel Lottery are requested to undertake this arduous task a second time on behalf of the public; a sufficient number of these having kindly accepted, it is hoped that the friends to a National University and the other federal objects may continue to favor the design.

By accounts received from the different parts of the Continent as well as from Europe, where the tickets have been sent for sale, the public are assured that the drawing will speedily commence, and that the care and caution unavoidably necessary to insure a safe disposal of the tickets, has rendered the short suspension indispensable.

SAMUEL BLODGET.

☞ Tickets may be had at the Bank of Columbia; o James West & Co. Baltimore; of Peter Gilman, Boston of John Hopkins, Richmond; and of Richard Wells Cooper's Ferry. eo

FOR SALE,
A very Valuable Estate,

CALLED TWITTENHAM, situate in the township of Upper Derby, and county of Delaware, 7 1-2 miles from Philadelphia, and half a mile from the new Western road: containing 230 acres of excellent land, 45 of which are good watered meadow, 90 of prime woodland, and the rest arable of the first quality. There are on the premises a good two story brick house, with 4 rooms on a floor, and cellars under the whole, with a pump-well of excellent water in front; a large frame barn, stables, and other convenient buildings; a smoke-house and stone, spring-house; two good apple orchards, and one of peaches. The fields are all in clover, except those immediately under tillage, and are so laid out as to have the advantage of water in each of them, which renders it peculiarly convenient for grazing.

The situation is pleasant and healthy, and from the high cultivation of the land, the good neighbourhood, and the vicinity to the city, it is very suitable for a gentleman's country seat.

The foregoing is part of the estate of Jacob Harman, deceased, and offered for sale by Mordecai Lewis
Surviving Executor.
